If you click on the link contained in the text message, then the malware will attempt to infect Android based Smartphones (it won't infect iOS but does redirect Apple users to a phishing site) with spyware, which hides in the background while snooping on all your sensitive data and credit card details.

Additionally, it will send out spam infected messages to all your contacts.

If your phone becomes infected, then I would recommend contacting your mobile phone provider straight away.

SCAM WARNING

iTunes scam emails reported over 300 times

Action Fraud has received over 300 reports in eight days relating to fake emails purporting to be from Apple. The emails claim that the recipient's iTunes account was used to make a purchase and provide links to a "cancellation form" that supposedly allows the transaction to be cancelled. The links actually lead to genuine-looking websites that are designed to steal login details, as well as personal and financial information.

Your bank, or any other official organisation, won't ask you to share personal information over email or text. If you need to check that it's a genuine message, contact them directly.

Spotted a suspicious email? Forward it to the Suspicious Email Reporting Service (SERS) - report@phishing.gov.uk
